By an oversight of the treasurer in last year's reports the note of J. M. Greeley was not recorded with liabilities, and the balance against the town was $2,767.97 instead of $2,267.97 as reported. That, with one hundred dollars due last year and paid this year, with the hard winter of 1888, the bills for breaking roads after settlement, which were high, have combined to make it difficult for the selectmen, and we have done the best we could under the condition of things, and hope it will meet the approval of our fellow townsmen, as there was no money raised to pay town charges.

Report of School Board.

In presenting this, our annual report, we would observe that we endeavored to act faithfully and impartially and discharge our duty to the best advantage to all concerned.

We regret that we were deprived by sickness of the services of one of the board, Mr. Fifield, during the winter term of schools, consequently we were obliged to assume the duties ourselves.

We endeavored to procure teachers well qualified for their work and assigned them to the schools that in our judgment they were best adapted to. Perhaps some have not come up to our expectation while others have exceeded it.

It is very difficult to procure teachers that will please all, as some are more willing to censure than to praise. We think, as a whole, it is safe to say that our schools for the past year have been fully up to the average of preceding years, while in some we feel justified in stating that a marked change for the better is apparent in a large degree, and we judge that general satisfaction was the result.

With such a limited amount of money as we now have we did not deem it best to have but two terms of school, if otherwise they would be very short. If our citizens would think it best to raise some two hundred dollars more than what the law requires we could have three terms, which would be a benefit, too, and also for the best interest of the rising generation which we are preparing to soon fill places of trust and responsibility, thereby evidently showing that we have a deep interest in the education of our children, which is of the greatest importance, that they may take our places ready to act well their part in whatsoever sphere they may be called to fill.

We deemed it advisable to unite the Raccoon Hill district with the Thompson's, and have the summer term at the former and the second term at the latter place, which made it very commodious for all aside from the scholars at the west side of Raccoon Hill, which were sent to Andover, and gave general satisfaction.

The fall term at the North Road commenced and appeared to be succeeding well, and all anticipated a good term of school, but about the fourth week the scarlet fever broke out and we deemed it advisable to close the school, which the parents did not wish to be opened again until spring, or as soon as will be suitable for a school. We were hardly satisfied with the arithmetics that were used in our schools, and concluded an exchange would be beneficial to the pupil, and the exchange was generally satisfactory. It has been our aim to have but one series of books in all of our schools so that if any of our scholars wished to attend any other school in town, which some have had the privilege to do, they could do so without forming another class.

We now have a uniformity of text books throughout the town, which are as follows: Monroe's series of readers and spellers, Greenleaf's inductive series of arithmetic, Robinson's algebra, Harper's geography, Harvey's grammar, Brand's physiology, Higginson's history and Harper's series of writing books.

In looking over the registers we notice tardiness and irregularity of attendance in some cases still exists to an inexcusable extent. If the damage done could be confined to the absent or tardy pupil alone the evil would be far less serious, but it necessarily extends to all with whom he is classed. Another great evil, and a serious drawback to the success of the school, is the culpable neglect of those who should feel the deepest and tenderest interest in the school; it chills alike the zeal of teacher and pupil; neither can be expected to labor with that cheerfulness and ardor that they would if they had the sympathy and co-operation that they have a right to expect. This evil cannot be over-estimated. The Roll of Honor has become a prominent feature in our schools and is proving a means of doing great good by exciting a earnest desire to be prompt and punctual. The school at the Mills deserve especial mention in this direction, as we find more names registered than any other school in town.

Some of our school houses are an ornament to the town and the scholars seem to appreciate what it is to have a nice house by being careful not to disfigure it in any way. Some of the other ones are in a dilapidated condition and should pass out of existence and be replaced by modern structures. The one at Smith's Corner might be repaired with but little expense, and make a nice house; also the one at the North Road.

In conclusion we will say that our connection with the schools have been pleasant and agreeable to us, and we hope profitable to the schools. That the friends of education will awake to a realizing sense of their own interests, the importance of a more liberal education, and a due regard to the obligations they are under to the rising generation, is our earnest and sincere desire.

Respectfully submitted,
